

TPF-5(172)

An analytical review of child mobility assessments for school site programs study
Quarterly Report
April 2009

Phase I of the Statewide Mobility Assessment Study is ongoing. The Phase II scope of work was drafted and approved by the study participants. The Literature Review was completed. We continue to fill data gaps and clarify data collection issues between states. Data from the Student Talley's and the Parent Survey provided for the participating states by the National Center for Safe Routes to School was reviewed. Monthly conference calls were held in January, February, and March with the partner states, the University of Florida and the University of Washington.

Current Members of this TPF Study are: Washington, Texas, Florida and Mississippi.
